Note:

Not all banking and savings brands protected by the FSCS are included in this table – only those which share FSCS depositor protection coverage with other brands. If your banking and saving brand does not appear in this table, you can ask them directly how your money is protected or check the Financial Services Register (<https://register.fca.org.uk/>) to find out whether it has several brands under the same authorisation.

Please note that the information noted above relates to the authorised institutions in the relevant sector as at the date noted and is not updated on a continuous basis. For up to date information about authorised firms and their associated brand names please refer to the Financial Services Register (<https://register.fca.org.uk/>). Search the register for a firm name, select the relevant firm from results, scroll down, then expand the 'Trading/Brand names' section for a full list of registered and trading names.

It is possible that separate firms (with different Firm Reference Numbers) are part of a group of companies that use similar brand names (i.e. a simplified common version of the firms' legal names). If you have multiple deposits across a group of firms using similar brand names, you should check with the firms whether the £85k deposit protection limit is shared.

*From October 2015 AA Savings branded deposits are provided by Bank of Ireland (UK) PLC. Before this date they were part of the Bank of Scotland PLC. If you are not sure which institution is providing your AA Savings branded product please contact your bank to confirm.

From October 2019 Saga branded deposits are provided by Goldman Sachs International Bank. Before this date they were part of the Bank of Scotland PLC. If you are not sure which institution is providing your Saga branded product please contact your bank to confirm.

Note:

Not all banking and savings brands protected by the FSCS are included in this table – only those which share FSCS depositor protection coverage with other brands. If your banking and saving brand does not appear in this table, you can ask them directly how your money is protected or check the Financial Services Register (<https://register.fca.org.uk/>) to find out whether it has several brands under the same authorisation.

Please note that the information noted above relates to the authorised institutions in the relevant sector as at the date noted and is not updated on a continuous basis. For up to date information about authorised firms and their associated brand names please refer to the Financial Services Register (<https://register.fca.org.uk/>). Search the register for a firm name, select the relevant firm from results, scroll down, then expand the 'Trading/Brand names' section for a full list of registered and trading names.

It is possible that separate firms (with different Firm Reference Numbers) are part of a group of companies that use similar brand names (i.e. a simplified common version of the firms' legal names). If you have multiple deposits across a group of firms using similar brand names, you should check with the firms whether the £85k deposit protection limit is shared.

*From October 2015 AA Savings branded deposits are provided by Bank of Ireland (UK) PLC. Before this date they were part of the Bank of Scotland PLC. If you are not sure which institution is providing your AA Savings branded product please contact your bank to confirm.

From October 2019 Saga branded deposits are provided by Goldman Sachs International Bank. Before this date they were part of the Bank of Scotland PLC. If you are not sure which institution is providing your Saga branded product please contact your bank to confirm.
