Note:
Not all building society brands protected by the FSCS are included in this table – only those which share FSCS depositor protection coverage with other brands. If your building society does not appear in this table, you can ask them directly how your money is protected or check the Financial Services Register (<https://register.fca.org.uk/>). Building societies whose deposits are FSCS protected are also required to display FSCS posters at branches listing the brands that share protection, provide depositors with an annual information sheet describing protection, and include a statement regarding protection on depositor statements of account.

Please note that the information noted above relates to the authorised institutions in the relevant sector as at the date noted and is not updated on a continuous basis. For an up to date list of information about authorised firms and their associated brand names please refer to the Financial Services Register (<https://register.fca.org.uk/>)

If you had a deposit with a building society that has merged with another (or converted, or transferred to a bank) the Building Societies Association has a building society finder (www.bsa.org.uk/information/where-is-my-old-building-society). There is an additional service at www.mylostaccount.org.uk which is a free tracing service for lost bank and building society accounts and NS&I savings products that is operated jointly by BSA, UK Finance and NS&I.

Many building societies use deposit aggregators to source retail deposits. Deposit aggregators, sometimes also referred to as cash management platforms or savings marketplaces, are online platforms which enable customers to deposit funds in savings accounts held with a number of banks or building societies. If you are not sure which building societies actually hold your deposits please contact the deposit aggregator to confirm the position. If you hold deposits directly with a building society as well as indirectly in the same building society through an intermediary like a deposit aggregator, the £85k deposit protection limit is shared.
