Statement of Policy

Deposit Guarantee Scheme

April 2015

Updated July 2015

1 Introduction

1. This statement of policy is addressed to the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS) in respect of its role as scheme manager of the Deposit Guarantee Scheme (DGS). This statement may also be of interest to firms and depositors.
2. The purpose of this statement is to set out the expectations of the Prudential Regulation Authority (PRA) on the FSCS with regards to:
 - (a) the duties of the FSCS;
 - (b) the FSCS's role in assessing and paying compensation in respect of deposits;
 - (c) the FSCS's role in assessing and paying temporary high balance (THB) claims; and
 - (d) the FSCS's role in the funding of the Deposit Guarantee Scheme (DGS).
3. By providing further information to the FSCS with regards to its duties and role in paying and funding compensation in respect of deposits, this statement should help to ensure an effective deposit guarantee scheme and thus contribute towards the safety and soundness of deposit-takers.
4. This statement of policy is intended to be read together with the rules specific to deposits as set out in the Depositor Protection Part of the PRA Rulebook, which applies to the FSCS, and firms that are DGS members. The funding section is also intended to be read with the Management Expenses Levy Limit and Base Costs Part and the Management Expenses in respect of Relevant Schemes Part which also apply to PRA-authorized insurers and the Society of Lloyd's.

2 Background

5. The FSCS exercises the functions that are conferred on the scheme manager by Part XV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (FSMA).
6. The PRA is required, under section 213 of FSMA and SI 2013/598, to make rules establishing a scheme for compensating persons in cases where firms are unable or, likely to be unable, to satisfy claims for deposits.
7. In addition to PRA rules, other aspects of the operation of the FSCS are dealt with through the powers of the FSCS under company law (such as the power to borrow, to take on premises, etc) and through rules made by the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA).
8. In addition, FSMA confers certain powers upon the FSCS, such as a power under section 219 (Scheme Manager's powers to require information) to require persons to provide information.

3 Duties of the FSCS

9. Chapter 24 sets out duties of the FSCS in respect of the DGS.

Co-operation with other Member States' DGS

10. Depositor Protection 26.4 sets out that the FSCS must have co-operation agreements with other Member States' DGS. A template for such co-operation agreements should be reviewed by the PRA. Any material changes to the template should also be submitted to the PRA for review.

Language of correspondence with depositors

11. Depositor Protection 24.10 sets out the languages in which the FSCS may correspond with depositors. The FSCS may also communicate in Welsh where this is agreed with the depositor in addition to English.

4 Paying compensation

Pension schemes

12. Depositor Protection 6.4 clarifies that certain types of pension, including the occupational pension schemes of micro, small and medium-sized enterprises, where the schemes are money purchase schemes, are to be compensated on the basis that each member has a separate entitlement to compensation. The deposits of occupational pension schemes of large enterprises are not eligible deposits under the Deposit Guarantee Scheme Directive (DGSD), and cannot therefore attract FSCS protection.

Landlord and Tenant Act deposit accounts

13. Where an account holds money for a trust fund that has been established under section 42 of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1987, the PRA considers that such accounts should be treated like other non-pension trusts with multiple beneficiaries in accordance with Depositor Protection 6.3-6.9.

Paying compensation to a person other than the depositor

14. Depositor Protection Chapter 6 (paying compensation) allows the FSCS to pay compensation to a person other than the depositor (or to a person other than the person who is absolutely entitled to the deposit) in certain circumstances. The PRA considers examples of the circumstances covered by these rules to be:

- (a) when personal representatives are entitled to receive compensation on behalf of the deceased;
- (b) when trustees are entitled to receive compensation on behalf of beneficiaries (for further provisions relating trustees entitlement to compensation, see Depositor Protection 6.3 to 6.6);
- (c) when the donee of an enduring power of attorney or a lasting power of attorney is entitled to receive compensation on behalf of the donor of the power;
- (d) when the Court of Protection is entitled to receive compensation on behalf of a person incapable by reason of mental disorder of managing and administering his property and affairs; and
- (e) when a depositor dies before receiving compensation.

Paying compensation to agents

15. If a depositor is an agent for one or more principals, the PRA expects that, under Depositor Protection 6.2(5)(a), the FSCS must treat the principal or principals as being the party entitled to receive compensation, not the depositor.

Obligation to pay compensation

16. The obligation to compensate arises when deposits with a DGS member are determined to be unavailable deposits. The PRA would make such a determination as soon as possible after being satisfied that either of the conditions under the 'unavailable deposit' determination (as defined in Depositor Protection Chapter 1) has been met.

Subrogation and Recoveries

17. When the FSCS compensates a depositor, the subrogation rules in Chapter 28 are activated. These enable the FSCS to 'stand in the shoes' of the depositor to bring a claim against the failed firm to recover the costs of compensation. The FSCS can elect to exercise this right in Chapter 28 in relation to some, or all, of the depositor's claim.

18. Depositor Protection Chapter 30 sets out how the FSCS must act in relation to recoveries made from a credit institution or third party in respect of eligible deposits.

Interim compensation payments

19. Regarding Depositor Protection 9.6, reasonably practicable, the PRA expects the FSCS to inform depositors (that do not fall under any of the categories of depositors excluded from the seven working day repayment obligation under Depositor Protection 9.4) if the FSCS considers they are unlikely to make compensation available within seven working days from the date on which deposits are determined to be unavailable and that they tell depositors that they may request an interim compensation payment.

20. In such circumstances, when the FSCS is required to make a payment to cover the cost of living in accordance with Depositor Protection 9.6(1), the PRA expects the FSCS to have regard to the following considerations when determining the appropriate amount to pay the depositor:

- (a) the amount of time before the FSCS is able to pay the depositor the full amount;
- (b) the total aggregated deposits held by the depositor; and
- (c) whether the aggregated deposits include deposits held in the depositor's primary current account (if known).

21. In general the PRA expects that interim payments made in accordance with Depositor Protection 9.6(1)(a) should equal at least 75% of the balance up to a maximum of £5,000.

22. In general the PRA expects that interim payments made in accordance with Depositor Protection 9.6(1)(b) should equal at least 75% of the balance or £85,000, whichever is lower.

Timing for compensation

23. Depositor Protection 9.4 sets out the circumstances in which the FSCS may defer payment of compensation beyond the time period set out in Depositor Protection 9.3, consistent with the recast DGSD. The PRA expects that the FSCS should aim to pay out these deposits within three months where possible. The PRA recognises that circumstances where it may not be possible for FSCS to pay out within this timeframe may include:

- (a) where the deposit remains subject to legal dispute after three months;
- (b) where the deposit remains subject to restrictive measures imposed by national governments or international bodies; and

- (c) where there remains uncertainty as to whether a person is entitled to receive compensation, despite investigation by the FSCS.

Calculation of the compensation sum

24. Depositor Protection Chapter 5 sets out how the FSCS should calculate a compensation sum. In calculating the depositor's overall compensation, the FSCS may rely, to the extent that it is relevant, on any determination by:

- (a) a court of competent jurisdiction;
- (b) a trustee in bankruptcy;
- (c) a liquidator; and
- (d) any other recognised insolvency practitioner.

5 Compensation for temporary high balances

25. Chapter 10 sets out the PRA rules applicable to the protection of certain deposits categorised as 'temporary high balances' (THBs).

Application

26. The PRA considers that the THB protection limit in Depositor Protection 4.3 applies to each depositor on a 'per event per authorised entity' basis and is intended to apply to natural persons only and not all eligible depositors. As a result, if a person has eligible deposits in excess of £85,000 as a result of more than one of the life events set out in Depositor Protection 10.2, that person may make a claim for compensation in respect of both of those events and the limit in Depositor Protection 4.3 would apply separately to each event. For example, if a depositor had a deposit of £750,000 from an inheritance and a deposit of £750,000 from a house sale, then they would be able to claim up to £750,000 in each case.

27. Where a depositor has spread a THB across more than one deposit-taker, then they would be able to make a separate claim for each deposit-taker that defaults. However, the depositor would still need to demonstrate a sufficient link between the amount in their account at the point of default and the THB event. The depositor should never be able to claim more than the value of the original THB amount.

28. Depositors in a joint account will each benefit from THB coverage separately, although they will only benefit from this if they are able to demonstrate that the THB arises from a relevant life event and provide verification. Each joint account holder will also only be able to claim for the proportion of the THB deposit to which they are entitled (in accordance with the terms of the account or equally, where the terms of the account do not specify the split). For example, where £2 million (which is the proceeds of sale from the depositor's house) is deposited in a joint account which is owned equally by a couple, each will be entitled to claim up to £1 million. If only £1 million is deposited, each can claim up to £500,000. For the avoidance of doubt, as noted above, each depositor can claim on a 'per event per authorised entity' basis meaning that a couple is entitled to a claim of up to £1 million each for the same life event (eg wedding or redundancy) per authorised entity.

29. Under Depositor Protection 10.7, the protection for THBs runs for a period of six months from the later of the first date on which a THB is credited to a depositor's account (or to a client account on a person's behalf) or the first date on which the THB becomes legally transferable to the depositor. The PRA considers that a deposit becomes legally transferable to a person at the point in time when that person becomes entitled to receive the money. This is likely to include the date of grant of probate, the date of completion of a residential property sale or the date on which a judgement is made awarding damages.

What types of THB deposits are protected?

30. Depositor Protection 10.2 sets out the list of categories of eligible deposits that may benefit from THB protection. We have set out further detail below on the PRA's expectations in relation to these categories:

(1) Deposits relating to a depositor's private residential property (Depositor Protection 10.2(1))

31. The protection under Depositor Protection 10.2(1) should enable a person to claim THB protection in relation to amounts deposited in their own account or in a solicitor's client account on their behalf.

32. The PRA considers references to 'private residential property' in Depositor Protection 10.2(1) to refer to a specific residential property (ie the property is identifiable) in which the depositor resides, intends to reside or has resided as their main or only residence (as that term is understood in connection with capital tax gains purposes). The PRA does not consider that general savings for a property should fall under this category.

33. The PRA considers that land purchased with a view to constructing a dwelling would fall within this category. The depositor should provide evidence that the land has been purchased (or is about to be purchased) with a view to constructing the purchaser's only or main dwelling.

34. The PRA considers that proceeds from the sale of a property that the depositor owned as a buy-to-let property, or that was the depositor's investment property, should not benefit from THB protection. Similarly, the PRA considers that funds held by a depositor in preparation for the purchase of second home, a holiday home, or any other investment property (which will not be the depositor's only or main residence) should not be protected.

35. For the avoidance of doubt, the PRA does not consider that THB claims falling under this category should be restricted to the purchase price of the property. For example, the PRA expects that amounts falling under category 10.2(1)(a) could include deposits for anticipated stamp duty and associated fees.

(2) Deposits that fall under Depositor Protection 10.2(2)

36. The PRA considers that the following deposit types would benefit from THB protection:

- (a) sums paid in respect of benefits payable under an insurance policy. These may include proceeds of pure protection contracts as well as sums paid in respect of lump sums payable under an endowment or life insurance policy;
- (b) a claim for compensation for personal (including criminal) injury. This may include personal injury compensation payments or damages for incapacity or invalidity (made in court (by Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunal Services or by an equivalent European Economic Area (EEA) court) or out of court, or from a statutory body);
- (c) state benefits paid in respect of a disability or incapacity. This may include backdated payment for care, disability living allowance, severe disablement allowance, vaccine damage payment;

- (d) a claim for wrongful conviction. This may include compensation for wrongful conviction resulting from decisions made by Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunal Services or by an equivalent EEA court;
- (e) sums paid in respect of a divorce or dissolution of a civil partnership. These may include divorce settlement lump sums (including out of court settlements) or lump-sum settlements resulting from civil partnership dissolution;
- (f) sums paid in respect of sums payable on retirement. These may include lump sums payable under pension schemes; and
- (g) Sums deposited in preparation for the purchase of, or arising from the sale of house boats and other mobile homes which are or, if the purchase not yet happened, are intended to become, the depositor's only or main dwelling.

(3) Deposits that fall under Depositor Protection 10.2(3)

37. The PRA considers that sums paid to a depositor in respect of benefits payable on death may include death in service payments paid under occupational pension schemes or otherwise.

38. The PRA also considers that ISAs passed on to a spouse at death would also fall under this category.

The FSCS's role in verifying THBs

39. Following the default of a firm (ie where a determination has been made that deposits are unavailable), the PRA expects that the FSCS will review the SCV file of the firm and write to depositors with aggregated deposits at the firm in excess of £85,000 to inform them that they may be entitled to additional compensation if they hold any deposits that qualify as temporary high balances and can provide evidence verifying this.

40. The PRA expects the FSCS to provide information to the depositor on what constitutes sufficiently robust evidence and refer the depositor to where they may find further information, including information on any prescribed format for the evidence, the address to which the evidence should be submitted, any relevant timeframes for submission and an overview of the process the FSCS will follow in assessing the evidence. The PRA expects that the FSCS may ask to review evidence including (but not limited to) the following: a property sale receipt or agreement; a court judgement; a will; a letter from an insurer regarding an insurance payout; a letter from a lawyer, conveyancer, mortgage provider, former employer or pension trustees; court orders; social security statements; probate/letters of administration; death/marriage certificate; land register records and HMRC records. This list is not exhaustive.

41. Regarding claims made in respect of Depositor Protection 10.2 (2)(g), the PRA expects that the FSCS should require suitable evidence that a marriage or civil partnership between two specified individuals has been arranged, for example, confirmation of the booking of the marriage or civil partnership ceremony.

42. The PRA expects the FSCS to assess the validity of a THB claim in accordance with PRA rules and to determine if a sufficient link has been established between an eligible deposit and the relevant THB category on the basis of the nature of and quality of evidence provided by the depositor.

43. The PRA expects the FSCS to determine (i) that the evidence provided by the depositor is sufficiently robust; and (ii) that the deposits fall under one of the THB categories.

44. The PRA acknowledges that because depositors may have payments flowing in and out of their accounts, it may be difficult to establish what portion of their money has retained THB protection since the THB was paid in. The PRA considers that, once the THB has been credited to a depositor's account, the depositor will benefit from the extra THB protection for the coverage period to the value of the original THB credit, no matter what pattern of payment follows.

45. If a THB is transferred to another DGS member, then the PRA considers that the THB cover would be retained (although the coverage period will not begin again, ie the depositor will not be able to receive consecutive periods of cover for the same THB). Where there are a number of payments flowing in and out of accounts, it may be difficult to establish whether a THB has been transferred and the PRA expects that the FSCS, in determining if a sufficient link has been established between an eligible deposit and a THB category, should have regard to a number of considerations including:

- (a) the written evidence provided by the depositor;
- (b) the value of the amount or amounts transferred and whether they constitute a de minimis proportion of the original THB;
- (c) the length of time that has elapsed between the life event specified and the date on which the relevant sum was credited to an individual depositor's account; and
- (d) any other relevant factors.

46. By way of illustration, the examples below set out where the PRA expects that a depositor would be eligible for THB protection and where protection would not apply.

Examples: In the examples below it is assumed that a depositor's £100,000 inheritance has been credited to bank A.

- (a) If the depositor transfers £50,000 to bank B, the PRA considers that the depositor should be able to claim up to £50,000 from the FSCS for each amount (in addition to the standard £85,000 compensation per bank) should both banks fail within six months from the date at which the £100,000 was credited to bank A.
- (b) If the depositor withdraws £100,000 from bank A, and A fails within six months of the date at which the original £100,000 inheritance was credited to A, and the depositor still has aggregate deposits of £100,000 remaining in the account, then the PRA expects that the depositor should be able to claim £15,000 THB compensation.
- (c) If the depositor transfers £50,000 to bank B, giving the depositor a balance with bank B in excess of £85,000, and bank B fails one month after the amount was credited to B but seven months after the original amount was credited to A, then the PRA considers that THB protection should not apply.
- (d) If the depositor withdrew £100,000 from bank A, but there was no corresponding transfer to bank B, should bank B fail and the depositor had an aggregate balance of £185,000 at bank B (and there had been no payments in during the coverage period), the PRA considers that the depositor should not be able to claim £100,000 THB protection from bank B.

Limits in compensation payable

47. Depositor Protection 4.3 sets out that, for THB claims for sums paid in respect of personal injury or incapacity claims, there is no limit to the compensation payable for THBs. The PRA expects that deposits falling under this category would include sums paid in respect of:

- (a) claims for compensation for personal (including criminal) injury under Depositor Protection 10.2(2)(b) which may include personal injury compensation payments or damages for incapacity or invalidity (made in court (by Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunal Services or by an equivalent EEA court) or out of court, or from a statutory body);
- (b) state benefits paid in respect of a disability or incapacity under Depositor Protection 10.2(2)(c) which may include backdated payment for care, disability living allowance, severe disablement allowance and vaccine damage payment; and
- (c) benefits payable under insurance contracts for personal injury or incapacity claims.

48. For the avoidance of doubt, the PRA considers that the THB limit may apply to a number of deposits for the same life event. For example, where a depositor has three deposits of £5,000 as separate gifts for the same wedding, the depositor is entitled to claim up to an additional £15,000 over and above their normal £85,000 protection. Total claims for the same life event may not exceed £1 million (unless for a personal injury or incapacity claim).

Payment of compensation for THBs

49. Depositor Protection 10.8 sets out the timeframe for the FSCS to pay compensation.

50. In accordance with Depositor Protection 10.6, the FSCS may pay compensation in respect of a temporary high balance to a person who makes a claim on behalf of another person in certain circumstances. Examples of circumstances in which the FSCS may decide to pay compensation in respect of a THB to a person who makes a claim on behalf of another person include:

- (a) where a personal representative makes a claim on behalf of the deceased;
- (b) where a solicitor makes a claim on behalf of clients who are entitled to money in the solicitor's client account;
- (c) where trustees make a claim on behalf of beneficiaries;
- (d) where the donee of an enduring power of attorney or a lasting power of attorney makes a claim on behalf of the donor of the power;
- (e) where the Court of Protection makes a claim on behalf of a person incapable by reason of mental disorder of managing and administering his property and affairs; and
- (f) where an eligible claimant makes a claim for compensation but dies before his claim is determined.

6 Funding of the FSCS

Legislation around funding

51. Section 213(3)(b) of FSMA requires the PRA to make rules to enable the FSCS to impose levies on firms in order to meet its expenses under the deposit guarantee scheme. These expenses include in particular expenses incurred, or expected to be incurred, in paying compensation, borrowing or insuring risks.

52. Section 224F of FSMA enables the PRA to make rules to enable the FSCS to impose levies on PRA firms in order to meet its management expenses incurred if, under Part 15A of FSMA, it is required by HM Treasury to act in relation to relevant schemes.

53. Section 223 of FSMA prevents the FSCS from recovering, through a levy, any management expenses attributable to a particular period in excess of the limit set in the PRA and the FCA rules as applicable to that period.

FSCS access to mandatory contributions

54. In accordance with Article 10(4) of the recast DGSD and the Deposit Guarantee Scheme Regulations,⁽¹⁾ Depositor Protection 32.2 restricts the FSCS's ability to borrow an amount equal to the amount of such mandatory contributions in order to meet the liabilities of the deposit guarantee scheme. The FSCS may borrow such amounts to meet the liabilities of the DGS if the PRA determines that the FSCS is unable to raise levies from DGS members to meet those liabilities. In accordance with the Deposit Guarantee Scheme Regulations the PRA will make that determination on a case by case basis, at the time of each call on deposit guarantee scheme funds. In making this determination, the PRA expects to take into account a range of factors including the likely impact on financial stability of raising levies, as well as the amount of levies needed to be raised.

55. Depositor Protection 34.3(2) also sets out the DGSD requirement that regular levies imposed under Depositor Protection 34.3(1) shall take due account of the phase of the business cycle and the impact that procyclical contributions may have when setting annual contributions. In order to meet this requirement, the PRA expects the FSCS to consult the PRA before setting the timing and size of levy amounts raised.

Levying timings

56. The FSCS may impose three types of levy on DGS members: a DGS management expenses levy (consisting of a DGS base costs levy and a specific costs levy); a DGS compensation costs levy; and a DGS management expenses in respect of relevant schemes levy. The FSCS has discretion as to the amount and timing of the levies imposed.

57. Under Depositor Protection 34.2, the FSCS must levy DGS members at least once in each financial year (and in respect of DGS compensation costs, for expenditure expected in the period of twelve months following 1 July in that year). However, if the DGS compensation costs or DGS specific costs incurred, or expected to be incurred, exceed the amounts held, or reasonably expected to be held, to meet those costs, the FSCS may, at any time during the financial year, do one or more of the following:

- (a) impose an interim DGS compensation costs levy or DGS management expenses levy; or
- (b) utilise other sources of funding such as commercial borrowing or other borrowing including from the National Loans Fund; or

(c) utilise money collected from DGS members as set out in, and subject to Depositor Protection Chapter 33.

58. The PRA expects that the FSCS should generally impose a levy rather than borrow or utilise funds as described in (c), unless the latter options appear to it to be preferable in the specific circumstances prevailing at the relevant time; for example, to address short-term liquidity issues, or in order to deal with a significant failure without having to wait for a levy to be imposed or collected.

DGS management expenses levy

59. The PRA's rules on the Management Expenses Levy and Management Expenses in respect of Relevant Schemes are set out in the Management Expenses Levy Limit and Base Costs Rulebook Part and Management Expenses in respect of Relevant Schemes Rulebook Part.

60. A DGS management expenses levy may consist of two elements. The first is a DGS base costs levy, for the base costs of running the FSCS in a financial year, ie DGS share of costs which are not attributable to any specific class. Included in this category are items such as the salary of the members of the board of the FSCS, the costs of the premises which the FSCS occupies, and its audit fees. The amount that each participant firm pays towards a DGS base costs levy is calculated by reference to the regulatory costs paid by the firm as a proportion of total regulatory costs of all participant firms. All DGS members are liable to contribute towards a DGS base costs levy.

61. The second element of a management expenses levy is a DGS specific costs levy for the 'specific costs' of running the deposit guarantee scheme in a financial year. These costs are attributable to class A, and include the salary costs of certain staff of the FSCS and claims handling and legal and other professional fees. Another example is IT costs attributable to a specific class such as SCV data systems. It also may include the cost of any insurance cover that the FSCS secures against the risk of the FSCS paying out compensation above a given level in class A (but below the levy limit for class A for the year). The specific costs are attributed to the class which is responsible for those costs. When the FSCS imposes a DGS specific costs levy, the levy is allocated to class A up to the relevant levy limits. The FSCS may include in a DGS specific costs levy the DGS specific costs that the FSCS expects to incur (including in respect of defaults not yet determined at the date of the levy) during the financial year of the deposit guarantee scheme. The amount that each DGS member pays towards the DGS specific costs levy is calculated by reference to the amount of business conducted by the firm in class A. There is a 'class A tariff base' for this purpose, set out in Depositor Protection Chapter 43.

62. The PRA and the FCA typically consult on the limit on the FSCS's management expenses attributable to the forthcoming financial year of the FSCS in January each year.

Fees refund

63. Depositor Protection Chapter 38 sets out when the FSCS may adjust the calculation of a DGS member's share of any levy. Depositor Protection 38.5 sets out that the FSCS may not adjust the calculation of a DGS member's levy under Depositor Protection 38.4 on the grounds that it would be inequitable for that firm to pay that share or part of it (or on the grounds that it would be inequitable for the FSCS to retain that share or part of it). The reason for this rule is that any such claim should be dealt with under Depositor Protection Chapter 46.

Recovery of Fees

64. Paragraphs 23(8) and 27 of Schedule 1ZA and paragraphs 31(7) and 35 of Schedule 1ZB of FSMA permit the PRA to recover fees, and section 213(6) permits the FSCS to recover shares of the FSCS levy payable, as a debt owed to the PRA and FSCS respectively, and the PRA and FSCS, as relevant, will consider taking action for recovery (including interest) through the civil courts.

65. The PRA may also take regulatory action in relation to the non-payment of a share of a DGS levy, after reference of the matter to the PRA by the FSCS. What action (if any) is taken by the PRA will be decided upon in the light of the particular circumstances of the case.

Remission of Fees and levies

66. Depositor Protection Chapter 46 sets out the circumstances in which the PRA or the FSCS may reduce or remit FSCS levies. A poor estimate or forecast by a DGS member, when providing information relevant to the class A tariff base, is unlikely, of itself, to fall within Depositor Protection 46.1. By contrast, a mistake of fact or law by a fee or levy payer may give rise to such a claim.
